“You name it, we control it”

Softcon is a South African company focussed on developing and manufacturing cutting edge technology in the Access Control field.

True to its innovative nature, Softcon was one of the first South African companies to develop an affordable and intelligent Access Control solution for the South African market. Today, local and multi-national companies and entities continue to rely on Softcon solutions to help them to enhance security in often complex and sensitive environments. Nationwide implementations spanning over a hundred sites using thousands of controllers have been successfully rolled out, while home users with one controller also benefit from Softcon's flexible and innovative solutions.

The core modules of Softcon's solution is building management, with the main focus on access control, input/output monitoring, biometric solutions, smart card solutions, wireless communication, GSM communication, vending control, fuel control, solutions for visitor control, asset management, ID card production, cashless Point of Sale at canteens (POS) and Parking Point of Sale (PPOS).

Softcon has integrated key technology partner's solutions as Morpho from Safran and contactless Smartcard Technology from HID Global amongst others, to provide secure identity and access solutions to our customer base.

Softcon's headquarters is situated in the leafy suburb of Lynnwood in Pretoria where the manufacturing plant, sales, marketing, support and development teams are located. A regional branch in Cape Town supplies and supports the Cape Coastal Regions. An attitude of excellence is cultivated within our ranks, passionate about our technology, and dedicated to supporting and servicing our broad client base. Softcon has a team of qualified technicians and trainers focussed on supporting, educating, training and assisting our client base and the growing Security industry.

On a daily basis, thousands of customers in government, parastatal and private institutions in more than 42 countries relies on Softcon solutions to protect and secure their interests. Keeping abreast of the market trends and the increasing need for integrated systems, Softcon is well positioned to deliver solutions today as well as solutions for the future.
